

Differentiation: Practical classroom support for learners who use English as an Additional Language

This course, with newly developed content, is for primary and secondary practitioners who are seeking effective classroom strategies and resources to improve learning outcomes for EAL learners. This highly practical, evidence-informed course will explore how to embed targeted differentiation practices, so that all EAL learners can fully access the language of the curriculum, develop their English and achieve in school. Practitioners will work together in the morning and then split into primary and secondary phases for the afternoon session.

This course covers:

- Strategies and resources for differentiating tasks for learners who are new to English
- Practical ideas for improving learning outcomes for more advanced bilingual learners
- Ideas on how to use information and insights gained from EAL assessment to inform differentiation
- Planning frameworks which integrate content and language development
- Opportunities to share ideas and engage with fellow practitioners

This course is suitable for:

- Teaching staff
- Heads of department
- Teaching assistants
- EAL co-ordinators
